

From the Editors' Desk

We have now introduced "Reader's Card" starting from this issue of IWJ. In the space provided, please express briefly but freely your views. We are interested about the articles you would like to read, about this issue of IWJ, informations you are interested in, your personal achievements, activities, aspirations, etc. Through your response we shall be able to establish a two-way communication. It may be possible to link you up to the other interested persons or technical experts through, say, a new feature column like 'Reader's Corner' or 'Letters to the Editor'.

All communications are to reach us by 1st week of May 1985 for publication in the IWJ, July 1985 issue.

In this issue, the concluding part of the literature review article on the spot welding of mild steel sheet has been published alongwith suggested topics for the research in resistance welding. This may provide some guidance to the Universities and the Institutes in selecting research projects. The other paper deals with the welding activities on standardisation in progress through Indian Standards Institution.

We intend to publish an issue of the Indian Welding Journal on the Welding Research in India and Abroad. We invite the Technical Universities, the Research Institutes and Industries to send us papers relating to their approach, contributions, achievements and needs for welding research.

We look forward to your direct involvement.
