

From The Principal's Desk

Personally, I never believe in sermonising. Action, and not words, I feel should be the motto of our country. Working in that vein we at this college decided to do something which shall speak for itself without us having to indulge in braggadocio. This first issue of the technical journal of the college 'Reason', is a fruition of that effort.

For a four-year-old engineering college, it must be conceded by one and all, bringing out a technical journal is no mean achievement and I am indeed proud to have been associated with it. This has been made possible by the generous financial support provided by the Department of Higher Education, Govt. of West Bengal and, more importantly, by the active participation from all cross sections of this institution, namely the students, the staff and the faculty members. It is their verve and energy, enthusiasm and determination that have culminated in the publication of this journal at such a short notice.

As this is our maiden venture, we are afraid there may be many errors strewn here and there but these cannot obscure the fact that we as an institution are keen to spread our wings far and wide and desire to be counted in the list of those few institutions of the country that nurse and nurture all the faculties in a budding student and help him/her blossom into a full-grown flower.

We are confident that we would get the co-operation of all and sundry in our attempts to march ahead.
